KAYAKING IN ANTARCTICA

Live for today...

Paddle through the majesty of icebergs and live the experience of seeing varied birds, seals and whales in their natural habitat. Navigate the pristine waters under the supervision of a professional guide who will ensure your safety during each outing.

ADDITIONAL DETAILS

Duration
Each kayak excursion will last 2-4 hours, depending on timing and weather conditions.

Group capacity and kayak information
The group capacity is an average of 12 participants. The kayak type has a very flat surface which increases stability. The kayak brand varies depending on which vessel you are travelling on. Furthermore, you will be under the trustworthy supervision of a minimum of one cold water kayak instructor and an accompanying zodiac driver.

Clothing and Equipment
A dry suit will be provided for each participant, to maximize comfort and minimize risk. If you bring your own suit, it will must be checked by the kayak guide before the activities begin. A clothing layering system is recommended and a limited emergency gear will be provided by the staff.

Safety Precautions
All participants must carefully follow the guide's instructions. Before the kayaking expedition, detailed information will be provided and all participants are required to sign a waiver.

Pre-requisites to participate
Previous kayaking experience is necessary and it is recommended to have been in a kayak at least three times before. You will need to verify your travel and medical insurance prior to commencing kayaking. Kayakers age restrictions are varied depending ono the vessel, ask your booking agent for more details.

Please note that each kayaking expedition is dependent on sea, ice and weather conditions and may be cancelled without prior notice.

Do not miss the opportunity to glide through polar waters and experience the majesty of these landscapes up close.

Kayaking must be pre-booked and limited spaces are available. Please contact your booking agent to check availability and pricing.
